were concentrated in Kwangsi areas near the classic invasion route to Indochina. There was no sign of the Chinese preparing to move southward to the frontier which the French were holding very strongly, he said. Viet Minh rebel forces were receiving arms and ammunition from China, but so far no Chinese Communist forces had penetrated the frontier, the general added."

A possible motive for the troop movements reported in paragraph 1 is the invasion of Hainan, not Indochina. The large forces mentioned in paragraph 2 may be concerned with controlling Mationalist and anti-Communist guerrillas in the area mentioned as well as passing supplies to 25X1A Viet Minh forces. which reports 180,000 troops of LIN's forces in Kwangsi in early March. See also concerning the transfer to Yunnan of the troops of CHEN Keng, who is reported to be the Communist Governor of Yurnan.
